FREE BONUS FOR YOU AT THE END OF THE BOOK! EXCERPT The house wasn't that far away and they arrived within a very few minutes. Pulling over a couple of houses down from Sara's, Eve cut the engine. She and Hunter watched the house for a few minutes to assure themselves that no one else had arrived ahead of them. Then they exited the car and casually strolled to the back of the house. Climbing up the few steps to the deck, they approached some sliding glass doors that looked directly into the eat-in area of the kitchen. They had just stopped to look into the doors when a sudden energy of such malevolence slammed into Eve that she staggered and would have fallen if Hunter hadn't caught her. Black! No, black with blood red streaks twisting through it like small little rivulets of blood. She couldn't remember ever having felt such rage and madness. Her head instantly felt as if it was on the edge of exploding. Oh, yeah, she thought. This is a bad one. Download and discover why readers are raving about Sandra Ross.
